UC San Diego June 19th Capital Projects Open House

UC San Diego Campus Planning staff provided an overview of the recently adopted 2018 Long Range Development Plan, housing plans and capital projects underway, including the Future College Living and Learning Neighborhood. Based on feedback received from those who attended, the event provided a platform for dialogue between the campus and the community. Attendees expressed their appreciation for the outreach and were interested in being invited to future UC San Diego Open Houses.

Design and Innovation Building

The proposed Design and Innovation Building anticipated to begin construction later this month, will be the physical embodiment of UC San Diego's creativity, collaboration and entrepreneurship.

Located near the future Pepper Canyon Trolley Station on the west campus, this building will provide a novel entrance experience to the university and be a beacon not only for students, staff and visitors but also for the broader San Diego region. This collaborative building anticipated to be complete in Summer 2021 aims to encourage new ideas, products and services that contribute to UC San Diego's entrepreneurial spirit, encouraging more collaboration between the Jacobs School of Engineering, the Visual Arts and Cognitive Science Departments, the Office of Innovation and Commercialization, Alumni Association and other campus departments. The project with multipurpose building space can also be easily reconfigured for various programs, meetings, innovation and learning.
